

Semex recognizes the need for cattle that are most profitable in a pasture-based production environment. This means sires that yield high components, limited size while maintaining strength, durability and mobility. Efficiency is the key to good grazing animals, so GrazingPro sires will maximize component yield and put focus on health and reproductive traits to ensure highly profitable, long lasting animals with limited problems. These animals will also ensure easier calvings and create more darker coloured calves.

GrazingPro sires are designed to make management in grazing environments as effortless as possible, while maximizing profitability and peace of mind.

LOW INPUT

GrazingPro Sires create low to moderate stature while maintaining strength and durability.
