25th Anniversary Semex conference to welcome The Princess Royal

Semex UK and Semex Alliance in Canada are honoured to announce that Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal will be visiting the 25th Anniversary Semex Dairy conference on Tuesday 13th January 2015, at the Radisson Blu Hotel, Argyle Street, Glasgow.

“We are delighted and privileged that The Princess Royal is visiting our conference,” said Gordon Miller, Vice President Business Development. “She has a keen interest in agriculture through her patronage of several organisations, is extremely knowledgeable about dairy farming, and is a superb ambassador for our industry.”

The first Semex conference took place in 1990, and, since then, it has grown into one of the premier dairy conferences in the UK, attracting industry representatives and farmers from across the UK, and from abroad too.

“We are proud and honoured to have organised this conference for 25 years and brought something back to the industry we serve,” adds Mr Miller. “Over those years we have discussed and debated every topic to do with the industry, and have had the top industry leaders and farmers address us. The Princess Royal’s visit will be the pinnacle of all of those conferences.

“I would like to thank everyone who has contributed to making the Semex conference the success it has been, and still is, including the speakers, delegates, and media, plus Glasgow City Council for their generous support over many years. That, too, has been much appreciated. On behalf of Semex I look forward to warmly welcoming The Princess Royal in January.”
